As a student, school is like a second home to me. I acquire knowledge, develop relationships with classmates and so on. Therefore, school safety is a vital issue that we cannot neglect. Students' safety should be guaranteed because when something happens, we seek for help to teachers rather than parents. Though there's no mass shooting in Taiwan, there still exist some problems. For example, bullying is the most common problem at schools. Due to the development of technology and the Internet, cyber bullying is more rampant than before. This kind of bullying often wracks havoc on students' mental health and is difficult to find. Comments, spread on the Internet are anonymous, thus, they may be spread like wildfire. Therefore, students are prone to be rumored, isolated or even insulted verbally because of the accuses on the Internet. Cyber-bullied students will probably result in some mental health problems and influence their social skills because they are afraid of being attacked again if we don't take action to prevent cyber bullying.

This situation may even deteriorate when everyone including teachers are indifferent. Being a student of my school, I have responsibility to keep campus a friendly learning environment. We should organize security team to patrol around, which can enable us to find whether there are suspicious people, particularly places students seldom go to. Equipping monitors is also a way for teachers to get images immediately so they can help as fast as they can. Last but not least, caring about classmates and students is important. We get along with our peers for almost 8 hours a day, we should notice and stay alert when someone's behavior is abnormal so that we can tell our teachers to take next step. We also have to be careful about our behavior and words because we sometimes hurt people, more seriously, even polarize the class and cause conflicts. Creating a friendly campus is everyone's duty, and with the cooperation between students and teachers, we can enjoy a healthier and wonderful school life.
