Last night, a monstrous sound broke the silence of the night. An earthquake hit the village without any warning. Totally unprepared, the residents were severely maimed, some of which were even killed. Grief got the best of the fortunate survivors who narrowly escaped from their collapsed houses. Right now, this region is in the atmosphere of despair. There aren't enough resource to reconstruct their homes, and there are still tons of debris all over the village.

The authorities have promised to send the army there to help them clean up the wreckage. International humanitarian support is on the way as well. Not only the country itself but the whole world is raising funds, which will later be sent to the village. Residents in this area are expected to be settled in the nearby village before the reconstruction is completed. The authorities predict that lives of these people will be back on track in approximately three years. In the official statement it is mentioned that a new law will be made in order to subsidize the residents with richer resource. The recovery of this village may be tough, but it'll sure overcome the difficulties with all the love and support from all over the world.
