

二、 When it comes to doing household chores, I think that everyone in the house should be responsible for them. On the grounds that all family members live in the same space and enjoy the environment together, no one can escape from doing household chores. In addition, the chores should be well-divided in case one person does too much work and in turn runs out of steam, while others relaxing themselves to the fullest. Most important of all, the chores should be assigned to the right person, that is to say, the distribution of the chores should consider a person's ability, so that everyone in the house can make good use of their competence. With everyone realizing the importance of their responsibility and also keeping an eye on each others' work, one can enjoy a clean and tidy environment in the sweet home.

Take our family for example, we divide our work properly based on everyone's capability. My father washes windows, wipes the tops of shelves and lights seeing that he is the tallest in our family. My mom does the laundry and cleans the bathroom in that she said that she has been doing these chores since she was in her childhood and has been good at them since young. My sister always insists on sweeping floors and mopping floors because she is always willing to "slip" between rooms. Speaking of my work, I wash the dishes, wipes tables and plant flowers. The latter is my favorite seeing that planting flowers can allow me to enjoy the good smell and learn how to take care of things. Once, our family did household chores on a Sunday morning. In spite of the fact that it was tired, after we all finished, we sat in front of the TV and had a nice afternoon. It wasn't until then that I came to realize how nice it was with everyone going to great lengths to finish their work. And it occurred to me that I should behave well instead of throwing things whenever I want or making rooms messy because it would make the other tired. It's my belief that as long as we all do our best to do our parts, we can create a wonderful sweet home.
