

Am I on the top of the world? No budget, no limitation, I can do whatever I want to do today! With no doubt, I will definitely invite my sister to spend this unique day with me.

Instead of buying brand-named products, going to amusement parks, we are going to do something much more meaningful since we are eco-friendly and eager to have a cleaner earth.

Specially enough, we will film a short TV commercial, inviting the most popular celebrities, athletes, artists and the presidents of each country. In the film, people mentioned above will be required to say a sentence in any language they are used to, telling people around the world the importance of protecting our earth. I strongly believe, with the touching background music, terrified pictures of the polluted environment and celebrities from all aspects, the idea of being eco-friendly will be bright and eloquent. For sure, this TV commercial will be released through every corner in the world via the TV and the Net. Next time, when you see a fantastic commercial with your favorite Brad Pitt on it, saying "I love the Earth", you are sure to know who films it!
