If I won a prize and were able to choose between an invisibility cloak and a pair of smart glasses as my present, I would choose the former. After having read J. K. Rowling's Harry Potter series, who wouldn't want an invisibility cloak just like the very one Harry Potter has? That's exactly why I would pick it! I could feel as if I were Harry Potter himself. If I had this cloak, I would be a professional magician, the occupation of my dreams. I would perform magic tricks such as "Go Invisible", in which all I had to do is to have the cloak cover me entirely, and "Walk Through Fire", in which I would wrap the cloak around my legs and slowly walk through fire. So many magic tricks that seems impossible to be done by many prestigious magic performers nowadays might all become a piece of cake for me.

The reason why I wouldn't choose the pair of smart glasses is that I do not want to see every living creature behind every wall or every door! Imagine wearing that pair of glasses walking in your house and see hundreds of cockroaches you wouldn't have seen if you weren't wearing them. You might even accidentally see your brother taking a bath, and go "Oops". As far as I'm concerned, I wouldn't want to go "Oops" every time I walk past the bathroom! These pair of glasses might lead to some serious psychological problems since we might see things that we had better not. Some things are better left to be unseen. However, I wonder, could the people who chose the pair of smart glasses see me under my invisibility cloak while I'm performing my magic tricks? Wouldn't that be disastrous? Well, I would pray that they can't — or don't bust me, even if they can!
