If my school were to hold a community event, I would choose to provide services to senior citizens in the community. There are several reasons for me to make this decision. To begin with, by interacting with elderly, I believe that both teachers and students can benefit a lot from them. Not only could we learn how to deal with their demands, we could also learn how to take care with others. Moreover, they might even share their personal experience with us! Secondly, by doing all the cleaning and cooking, students can get practical experience in everyday life, which is essential for youngster today. Furthermore, we will be more appreciated to those who devotes their time and effort upbringing us. Last but not least, I think it is imperative for people to provide their love and support to others, especially to those in need. Even though I am not sure if all the senior citizens in the community are lonesome and lack of companion, I am quite certain that we can deliver our joyful mood to them and cheer

As far as I am concerned, I hope this event will be heart-warming. First of all, we would introduce ourselves to the senior citizens. It would be awkward and embarrassed without introducing ourselves at first. Later, we would play some old-fashioned music to raise the atmosphere and do some moderate exercise at the same time. After that, some of our students may be cooking in the kitchen in order to prepare healthy and delicious meals for everyone. In the meanwhile, ^{the} other students may be cleaning for the elderly, such as mopping the floor or folding their beds. During the lunch time, we would chat for a while. For me, it is the essence of this event. With the conversation with the elderly, we could exchange our thoughts and point of views. Perhaps they may even share their life story with us! It is priceless to listen to their personal experience. I've once joined a volunteering group and visited a veteran living in countryside. He told us about the civil war and the separation between his fiancée and him. The story almost brought tears to my eyes! In the end of the event, we would give them a little present to show our gratitude for letting us have the opportunity to share the time with them!
