

Wandering on the street and pondering over what our lives mean, you may find it common to walk pass several parks. Indeed, parks of all kinds have already been an indispensable part of our lives. In picture A, it can be seen that there are diverse and multiple amusement facilities designed for children to have fun with peers.

Evidently, it is a playground with colorful slides, tunnels and innovative facilities which create a vibrant and lively ambience. On a leisure Sunday, parents often bring their child to here not only for children to rejuvenate their energy but for parents themselves to take a short break from taking care of kids. On the other hand, in picture B, it leaves people an impression of soothing and relaxing vibes which is entirely different from the former. Green leaves cover the whole branches and tall trees stand still to keep their posts. On the ground, elegant flowers blossom with grass surrounding. A brilliant sunshine pour down a silver linging, resulting in shadows on the ground. It is not merely a top choice for couples to have a romantic date in such a gracious garden but also a place for elderly people to enjoy the quality time with their old friends.

As for me, the combination of these two kinds of parks is definitely the ideal park in my imagination. In my book, suitable for all ages vary from young individuals to elderly ones is the key element for a successful park. A park with various kinds of facilities is never better than a park enables people to feel the breeze blow through their cheeks and to enjoy the fresh air and the brightness of sun. Instead of offering people a thrilling excitement, tranquility should be the crucial benefit bring to humankind. Imagining strolling on the path with your beloved one, standing shoulder by shoulder while exploring certain serendipity you bump into on your way. Isn't it sound wonderful? The initial intention for parks is to cleanse the bustling city and provide community a place to shelter from the hustle and trivality of daily lives. Consequently, no matter the size of the park is enormous or small, winding paths, long benches, diverse plantation are all the must-need to construct a park. No matter it is day or night, a park should allow joggers to release their stress and leave behind all the bothering things. All in all, parks are the inseparable part of a city. Therefore, the memory we have there should indelibly engrave in our hearts and root in our minds.
